JTS' Perishable Manager Graduates from Produce Marketing Association CGTbyPMA Emerging Leaders Program at PMA Fresh Summit Conference

Fresno, CA – October 20, 2016 – JTS (Johanson Transportation Service), a leading third-party supply chain solutions provider, announced that Jeff Mosqueda, Manager of Perishable Freight, has recently completed a one-year training program with the Produce Marketing Association's Center for Growing Talent, called the "CGTbyPMA Emerging Leaders Program". The training broadens its students' knowledge of the produce industry and offers an exchange of ideas from students in the program who come from all walks of the supply chain.

Mosqueda participated in the graduation ceremony at the PMA Fresh Summit Conference in Orlando, Florida on October 14 with a group of his peers.

"The Center for Growing Talent has given Jeff the opportunity to network with other young professionals in the global supply chain and the ability to see the industry from different perspectives. This will facilitate his progress in developing new business for JTS," said Rick Rattazzi, Senior Vice President. "The relationships he developed with others in the program will remain intact for his entire career, providing a network of young professionals where he can exchange ideas and opportunities. We are proud of Jeff's accomplishment and his graduation from the CGTbyPMA and are looking forward to seeing him continue to flourish as a leader at JTS."
